Ethics policy for corporate donation

The development of a fundraising activity in collaboration with the business world represents a significant tool for diversifying the financial mix of AIDOS - Italian Association for Women in Development, contributing to the goal of guaranteeing the financial sustainability of our Association and its activities.

In line with AIDOS work, which aims to promote and defend the rights, dignity and freedom of choice of women, the Association, in its collaborations with companies, intends to guarantee:

- The consistency of the values carried forward by the Association with regards to practices and policies and corporate strategies implemented by its donors.
- The protection of the Association's reputation from damage that could derive from collaborations with companies that violate the principles that AIDOS promotes.

AIDOS decision whether to collaborate with a company or not is taken on the basis of a rigorous ethical screening process that aims to ensure consistency and the protection of our principles and our activities. To this end, AIDOS will not accept support from:

- Companies involved in the production of weapons and armaments;
- Companies involved in the production of videos and / or child pornographic material;
- Companies operating in gambling and betting sector;
- Companies involved in disputes related to discrimination against women and / or LGBTI people;
- Companies that promote or have promoted advertising campaigns through the use of images that harm the dignity of women and / or LGBTI people;
- Companies that do not respect international human rights standards in all areas;
- Companies involved in significant disputes or scandals which could damage the image of the Association.
